

Carli Wright
Black Hawk College – East Campus

Carli Wright hails from a diversified grain and livestock operation in north central Illinois, where her passion for agriculture began to “grow”. Throughout her time on the family farm, she soon began to see how I could build a meaningful career in the agricultural industry, by serving both farmers and consumers. As of spring 2023, she is a sophomore at Black Hawk College - East Campus and will be graduating this May with an associate degree in science. In the fall, she will continue her education and collegiate soil judging at Iowa State University with a major in agronomy and an emphasis in crop production. She looks forward to continuing her education, and one day using the skills and knowledge she acquires as an agronomist.
